CITRUSY & TROPICAL

HERBACIOUS

INDIAN WHISKY

The drinking of Scotch style whisky was introduced to India in the 19th century. With such high-quality grain being grown in the Punjab region it was only a matter of time before India started producing its own whisky. Amrut was the first commercial whisky distillery to export its product, and now India is home to several excellent distilleries. The Indian malt has its own distinctive flavour, it delivers a wonderful rich biscuity note.
